Ms. Lee went shopping for a house party last month. To start with, she got all the items in her cart. Later she saw the bananas on sale. So she took some, too. After that, she went to the checkout to pay. She asked the clerk for the receipt and checked the price of each item. Here it was.

Receipt		2022-02-26
Apple	NT$60/each x 10,	NT$600
Orange	NT$15/each x 10,	NT$150
Tomato	NT$80 x 1 bag,	NT$80
Egg	NT$100 x 1 dozen,	NT$100
Cheese	NT$180 x 1 chunk	NT$180
In total		NT$1,110

After checking, she found that the clerk forgot to list the price of the bananas. So she asked for that. At the same time, she also talked to the clerk, "Please wait a second. I still need some meat." "No problem!" said the clerk. Then Ms. Lee ran back to the meat section to take a look. "All of the meat is on sale" is on the top of the shelf. She felt happy about this and took a pound of beef in her cart. In the end, she paid NT$1660 for all, put all her things in her car, and left. On her way home, she thought, "Oh, no! No buns at home." Would she go back or ask her son for help?
