 Julia: Yes, you do, my dear. What happened?
 Steve: I was kept on the train for an hour again. Already twice in a week!
 Julia: That's too bad. What did the train company do for the problem?
 Steve: Nothing. They just kept us waiting.
 Julia: Can't believe it! You know, several days ago, the train in my country left 20 seconds early. Then the company said sorry on TV.
 Steve: Sorry for just 20 seconds early?! You must be kidding. If my train can leave early every morning, I'll never be late for work.
 Julia: So you think the trains which leave earlier are better than the late ones?
 Steve: Don't you think so?
 Julia: How about those who run in a hurry, only to miss the train because it leaves earlier, even just one second early?
 Steve: Uh.....
 Julia: That's why the trains here are always very punctual.
 Steve: The trains in my country used to be like that, but now, as I just told you, it's a different story.
 Julia: Why?
 Steve: Who knows? Anyway, all I can do is go to work earlier or run for miles.....
 Julia: Haha! Don't you ever think the best way to get out of it all is to be here with me?
