Wu Pao-chun is a famous Taiwanese baker. He won the prize in the bread category of the contest held in Paris in 2010. He is known for a rose-lychee bread.
 He was born in a poor family in Pingtung. When he was twelve, his father died. His mother had to work hard and take care of her eight children by herself. When Wu was fifteen, he didn't go to senior high school. He went to Taipei and learned how to make bread.
 Before he went to Paris, he kept practicing every day. He sometimes practiced in the kitchen alone until the next morning. It was hard, but he didn't give up. In 2011, his bakery opened in Kaohsiung, and then his second bakery opened in Taipei. Now if you want to try the bread, you can go to his bakery. Hope you enjoy your time there!
